

WOMEN HARD AT WORK TO MAKE THEIR POINT

If hard and consistent work will have any bearing on the result, the seventeenth ward will give an overwhelming majority for woman suffrage at the primaries, April 9.

The Woman's Trades Union League, one of the leading organizations enlisted in the votes for women battle, has selected this ward as its particular field of effort, and the campaign of education as to the benefits the women claim will result from granting them the ballot will be carried on right up to the minute the polls close.

For each of the 27 precincts in the ward a captain has been appointed, whose duty it will be to see that a house to house personal canvas is made every house in the district. Volunteers have signified their willingness to assist in the canvas and the distribution of the suffrage literature.

This campaign of visitation is expected to sway sentiment toward the women, following the initial march of a band of suffragists, led by Mrs. Raymond Robins and Miss Mary Anderson, through the territory yesterday. No effort was made to cover the entire ward in yesterday's tour, that being left to the precinct captains.

Hearquarters for the ward have been established at the home of Mrs. Raymond Robins, president of the Woman's Trades Union League, 1437 W. Ohio street, and from there Miss Emma Pischell, in charge of the precinct captains, will direct her workers. In a whirlwind finale, the women are planning to go to the polls at 6 o'clock the morning of primary day to distribute suffrage tracts and "plug" for the "cause."

While centering its efforts in the 17th ward, the league will not neglect other fields in which it wields a strong influence. Sample ballots showing how a voter should make his mark to vote "yes" on the suffrage question have been printed, and these will be spread broadcast among union men throughout the city and members of the league are addressing the different union meetings every night.
